Big Changes at Bideford Library

What's happening ?

Things are going to be a little bit different at Bideford Library from later this spring. In line with other libraries across the county, Bideford will be doing away with the traditional counter and date stamps and introducing shiny new self-service terminals. Borrowers who have ventured as far as Barnstaple or even Ilfracombe or South Molton will already be familiar with these machines. Instead of handing books and library card to a library assistant to issue, return or renew items, borrowers will be able to do it for themselves. The system is very simple and works with Radio-Frequency Identification (RFID for short). Each book at the library has been tagged with an intelligent label so all that is needed is a swipe of the library card and the new terminals are able to detect which books the borrower has selected and transfer them to their account as if by magic.

But what about the nice people who normally serve me?

That's a good question and one the staff themselves were very keen to know the answer to! The good news is that no members of staff are losing their jobs because of this new technology. All the people who you currently see in the library will still be there to help you, particularly in the early days as you get used to the new system. In fact, assisted-service would be better than self-service as a description of how it will work. But with borrowers able to do all the basic tasks of borrowing, returning and renewing books, it means the library staff will have more time to do all the other important things like answering enquiries and helping people. And yes, they still like to speak to people so please say hello even if you haven't got an enquiry.

Any other changes?

Yes. To make room for the new terminals and smaller enquiry desk things will have to be moved around. This presents a good opportunity to improve the layout. Changes will include: more shelf space for popular fiction, a seating area where borrowers can sit and work or browse the newspapers and magazines, display space for local organisations and greater privacy for computer users. Other changes include the provision of free WiFi so visitors can connect to the internet with their own devices and also the ability to make payments with bank cards as well as cash. Altogether it should be an exciting time for the library and borrowers should see the benefits of a new and improved service.

To make sure all this happens, Bideford Library will be closed from Wednesday 7th March to Sunday 18th March 2012 inclusive, reopening at 9.30am on Monday 19th March. Borrowers will be able to take out items for a bit longer to cover the closure period, or take extra items and items can still be renewed or reserved on-line at www.devon.gov.uk/libraries. Don't forget you can also use any other library in Devon too, with Northam being the nearest library, being just up the road and open 21 hours a week. We look forward to seeing you again on March 19th in your newly upgraded library.

It is expected that the Horse Ambulance required for the Bideford Hospital will cost about £70, and up to the present about £25.12s.6d has been subscribed

The Coal Strike

This strike which has lasted for many weeks is due to continue. All the workmen on the Tapeley Estate have been given a load of hard work which is most acceptable when coal is so dear. A recent conference between mine owners and men has failed. A Minimum Wage bill will apply to all grades of underground workers in mines. There are 1,842,000 miners idle and in addition nearly 200,000 on half time.

Happy 40th for Men's Forum

The 20th January marked the 40th Anniversary of The Northam & District Men's Forum and Chris Walke Programme Secretary, presented a fascinating account of activities over the last 40 years. It is recorded that in 1974 one guest speaker, the Rev. Peyton Jones, arrived on his horse which then watched the proceedings through the assembly hall door! Also in January Irene Hahn, who worked for the BBC for 40 years, gave the Forum an insight into BBC programme making. From royal weddings to the first ever aerial shots from a radio controlled camera which pictured the return of the Falklands task force; it was a fascinating story.

The use of energy efficient construction and renewable energy at Woolfardisworthy Sports and Social Centre was the subject of a talk by Brian Butler. Green oak timber cladding, and use of photo voltaic panels, a wind turbine and underground heat sources, means very low running costs.

Did you know that Meddon Street was the location of a 19th Century Workhouse?

In February Local author

Liz Shakespeare talked about her novel 'The Turning of the Tide'. It focuses on the life of a young woman and her two small children and the cruel environment of the workhouse. Her book is based on real people and their experiences.

Norman Waite came to speak about the 'Bideford Lions and a Message in a Bottle'. This charitable organisation's scheme provides a free small plastic container for vulnerable people into which is inserted a note with their medical details, contacts, etc. Placed in the fridge it provides essential information to emergency services if needed. Well done the Lions.

New members are welcome to the Forum's weekly meetings on Thursdays at the Methodist Church Hall, Cross Street, Northam.

Refreshments from 10.15am with the speakers starting at 11.00am and finishing by noon.

Annual subscription is £10

The gift of life
Where dreams unfold
The gift of love to have, and to hold

The gift of happiness
To fill the air with joy
The gift of peace and special moments alone.

The gift of happy endings,
to make dreams come true,
The gift of special moments
Sharing my life with you

Family History

Hello once again, it is nice to get back to normal and in a routine. I hope that you are all getting on with your research and finding my lessons a help. Having now collected information from within the family, the best thing to do is to compile a family tree. This is a simple diagram showing you how all your family is related to one another. You can buy software packages,upload the details direct to online trees, or just use paper to sketch out your first family tree. Once you have started this you will see at a glance where there are gaps in your knowledge, such as unknown dates of birth, uncertain names or missing generations. This should help you to decide which branch of your family you want to investigate first, and allow you draw up a research plan to find out more about them. If you put pedigree forms into google you should find many examples of pedigree forms relating to family history. So have a go and good luck.

The next meeting of the North Devon Group of the Devon Family History Society will be on Saturday 17th March at the Burton Art Museum from 2.00pm till 4.00pm. It is free to attend and open to all. Any queries please ring me Len Collum, 01237 472883

West Quay Fundraisers will be holding an All Day Big Breakfast event on 17th March 2012, at St Mary's Church Hall, Appledore St Patrick's Day! for those Rugby fans England versus Ireland at 5.00 pm so plenty of time to have breakfast and settle in for the match. Breakfast will be available from 10am till 3pm in any of your favourite combinations. Money raised will be donated to the North Devon Hospice based in Barnstaple, who offer specialist palliative care to people with life threatening illnesses and support to their families. As if an All Day Big Breakfast wasn't enough, there will be a Table Top sale at a charge of £5.00 per table. If you should wish to book your table please call Penny on 01237 477373 who will take your details.

Collars and ties!

I have always worn a tie, I can remember my first day at school and my mother knotting my tie for the first time; it was yellow and green with a square end. I also decided that day that starched collars were uncomfortable, tight and cut my young skin like a saw. My father said, with some pride, 'George Ho the Chinese laundry man was an expert at producing saw edged collars.' No amount of pleading permitted me to wear a soft collar, it was a part of growing up "soldiers don't cry and they wear collars". From then on I wore a stiff collar at school, during my time in the service then, after demob, I wore a tie with my pin striped office uniform; I continued to wear a tie after I retired. I was wearing a tie three weeks ago when I had a stroke ; all I remember was the ambulance man tearing it undone when I thought my head was coming off!

After I was allowed home I began to wonder why am I so enamoured of a tie? Was it simply a habit, a custom to make me 'look neat and tidy' or to display the school tie or the regiment's? Perhaps even one of the dozen society ties I have. Was there or is there a law to make me wear a tie? Does it have a physical or a physiological effect like Pavlov's dogs? Surely having something tight around the neck must constrict and therefore reduce the blood flow to the brain, consequently making one's ability to learn more difficult. My head -master always took great delight in telling my parents that I was bone headed about wearing a tie unlike the rest of civilised society.

I have decided that a law must be passed making it illegal for anyone, whether it be by personal choice, custom and practice, officially or otherwise to wear a tie! I'm sure it could be passed as an amendment to the Health and Safety Act because the very act of tightening a tie around the individual's neck is potentially dangerous! How many old men have died as a consequence? I will ask my solicitor to draft a formal letter to my Member of Parliament, thereby giving him something to do, and ask he find a society that is not averse to interfering with personal freedoms to help me. On second thoughts, in hospital, I was told that the major cause of accidents involving old men was losing their balance and falling over whilst trying to put on their trousers on. A law to make them sit down whilst doing so could be an additional amendment and be a great advantage and cost saving to the nation as a whole.

Recently David Cameron had to tuck his tie into his shirt when visiting a hospital as a requirement of Health and Safety.(Ed)

Torrige Community Transport Association (TCTA) endeavours to provide a "transportation safety net for all", young and old, able bodied and disabled. The association works with all members of the community to develop community transport services within the area.

TCTA's Ring & Ride service is now operating weekly throughout the area due to a generous funding award from Tesco's supermarkets. This allowed the purchase of a 15 seater Minibus plus a smaller 7 seater vehicle for wheelchair users. The vehicles enable TCTA to offer supplementary services such as a Passenger Excursion Club and a Community Group Hire service

TCTA currently operates one of the largest volunteer car schemes in Devon within its core area of 36 parishes in northern Torrige, and surrounding areas.

With the support of the Bideford Bridge Trust, TCTA also administers a Taxi Voucher scheme. Eligible passengers receive up to £200 worth of vouchers for use with approved taxi firms within the Bideford area

The Step by Step group is for children with any form of additional needs aged 0-5 years and their parents/carers. The group is co-run by Helen from the Devon Portage Service and Trish from the Children's Centre.

At each session, there are a variety of different activities such as musical instruments and singing, painting, water play, and lots of other sensory experiences. These all promote good communication.

The aim of the group is for parents and children to come along and have fun, make friends and take home new play ideas. One mum who attends the Step by Step group commented on how she had tried to attend other stay and play groups but they were busy and just so overwhelming for her daughter. She said "The Step by Step group was more relaxing and calming for my daughter and the sessions were very beneficial because of the consideration staff gave to her and each individual child".

Step by Step meet every Thursday (Term Time only) at Bideford Bay Children's Centre at 1:30 and sessions finish at 3:00.

Daffodil Day and Mothering Sunday

Sunday 18th March 2012, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Hartland Abbey is holding their Daffodil Day again this year on Mothering Sunday. It will be a lovely chance to come with the family to see the wonderful collection of historic daffodils, many planted 150 years ago. In the past few years many more have been transplanted from Grenville College, formerly Moreton House, home to the Stucley family until 1950. Hartland Abbey wild flower days have now become established as really good fun days out for everyone including the dogs, of which literally hundreds turned up last year (with their owners!) ## Lip Reading - An Essential Skill For The Hard Of Hearing

Those of us who are hard of hearing and that includes those who are severely deaf, need to lead a full and active lives, as normal as possible. We are often reluctant to do so because of our hearing problems. Deafness is unseen. We feel inhibited and unwilling to join in a "normal" conversation in case we misunderstand or misinterpret what others are saying. Hearing aids are not always helpful as they can amplify all sounds, not just the voice, and in a crowded place conversation can be unintelligible and impossible.

Learning to lip read with a qualified tutor can be a life line to overcoming these problems and allow us to participate more fully in all situations in which communication is desirable or essential. This skill is not difficult to learn given time, patience and a sense of humour.

I am now in my second year of attending lip reading classes which I have found to be enjoyable and an interesting learning experience, coupled with a good social occasion; still have much to learn but I intended to stay the course.

Unfortunately lip reading classes are poorly advertised due to lack of funding, both locally and nationally.

"Word of mouth" is the only way at the moment which is somewhat ironic for deaf people. Classes are held in Bideford on Monday mornings in 3 X 10 weekly sessions over the year. Age is no barrier, just the willingness to learn. The atmosphere is totally relaxed with each of us learning at our own pace, not worried about mistakes and often join with others to laugh about them.

Not only is lip reading taught but also finger spelling which often helps with difficult words. Once or twice a session we will have a visit from someone working with the deaf or hard of hearing.

The qualified tutor is Heather Smith who is excellent and is very patient with us. She makes every lesson an enjoyable learning experience. We are never bored.

I feel that more people who are hard of hearing should know about these classes and they would undoubtedly benefit from them. So, if you are such a person why not pluck up the courage and give it a go. Contact Heather Smith,(a member of Association of Teaching Lipreading to Adults,) at 07923 536 908 or at heatherathoneywells@hotmail.com . She will gladly give you all the information you need. It can be a life changing opportunity. Why not try it? I did.

Bideford 500

Bideford 500 is working away on the plans for the Elizabethan Heritage Day on Saturday June 30th. We are putting the programme together, currently it includes the Cannon firing and town centre procession; schools artwork exhibition; Morris dancing; live music and performances all afternoon; a talk at St Mary's Church; guided Heritage trail walks; Elizabethan everyday life and a map-making workshop.

Beer - Country Life Brewery is producing a special new brew for the occasion and this will be available in bottles and on draft, for sale in June. We would like the new beer to be named by the public and will be running a competition in the local press in March.

Volunteer opportunities are coming thick and fast, including costume-making workshops in March and Heritage Guide training in March/April. We will need lots of helpers on the day and throughout June to help promote Heritage Day – if you are interested in helping us make the day a success please contact our volunteer co-ordinator Yas Olins-Dixon at yasmin@olins.fsnet.co.uk

Rope making – do you know how to do this? We would like to feature a traditional rope-making demonstration and 'have a go session' – if you have these skills and equipment, or know anyone who does – and are available on June 30th please contact Sadie Green, Project Development worker on 07855 760411 or email info@bidefordheritage.co.uk

North Devon Maritime Museum Appledore

The hunt is now on for new volunteers in order to ensure the Maritime Museum at Appledore runs smoothly throughout the coming tourist season - from Easter to the end of October.

A cheerful and warm welcome and a willingness to enthuse about our area are the chief requirements of our volunteers. They enjoy meeting and greeting our visitors many of whom are from Canada, America and Australia and are researching links with their north Devon relatives, or British nationals who have family or maritime links with Appledore.

All new volunteers will be shown the museum's routines and be supported by the experienced volunteers. A warm welcome awaits everyone. Please contact me if you would like to know more.

The Moorland Mousie Trust

14th and 17th March will be special Volunteer Recruitment days at the Centre so if you are interested in helping with our work in any way, please do come along between 10am and 3pm.

The Centre is open 10 till 5 every day of the week and if you ring when staff are busy with ponies, a friendly machine will answer you. If you are making a special trip to visit us, please ring to check that we will be around.

There will be an Easter Open Day on Sunday 1st April (weather permitting!) from 11 till 3 pm so put the date in your diary and come along and join in the fun.

Still within living memory?

Bideford 500, the town's Heritage Project is hoping to collect as many memories as possible about the Second World War that local people may still be able to recount. As the Project has a special connection with the USA memories of the GI's 'invasion' will be of particular interest. Whilst the project has brought together many examples of films, photographs, written articles and unearthed information from archives it is still keen to bring the personal experiences of local people during this period into prominence.

WW2 must still remain a significant part of the lives of those who lived in Bideford during 1939 to 1945. It's their memories, recollections and possibly even their photographs which would add so much value to this project. In addition to the local residents who remained in Bideford it would be interesting to hear about the recollections of local service men and women, memories of the Home Guard and any memories of the activities of the Bideford Cleave Wood Auxiliary Unit. If anyone can remember for instance particulars of the visit of Winston Churchill and General Eisenhower to the town then the Project needs to hear from them.

Bideford500 aims to develop a practical resource about the period, one that can be left for future generations to both use and enjoy.

The contact for any information is Louise Howell at BidefordWW2@gmail.com or on 01237 421347.

'The Foundation are delighted with Bidefordbuzz's work over the years especially their involvement of volunteers in their projects. At this time and due to the Foundation's small amount of grants it has to allocate it is rare for The Foundation to be able to fund organisations who have previously obtained a grant, but we were able to make an exception here.'

Agony Aunt

This month, students from Bideford College give their advice...

Dear Bideford Buzz,

My mum and dad are so mean - I'm 14 and my curfew to be home is still 6.30! All my friends are staying out late and I'm always being left out, what can I do to change my mum and dad's mind?

Angel, aged 14

Angel, I think you should just talk to them, tell them you are unhappy because you are getting left out - maybe they'd give you a later curfew but don't keep nagging them it will just make things worse.

Dear Bideford Buzz,

I am really worried about my weight. All my friends are thinner than I am and I have been telling my mum she needs to buy me fat free or low fat foods so that I don't put on any more weight – but all she says is that I am fine as I am. So, I have started to eat less food but it's not really helping. Anonymous

This is a very serious issue as it can lead to eating disorders such as anorexia. The best thing to do in this situation is to go and see your doctor as they can tell you if you really need to lose weight or not. You also need to remember that everyone is different and you will definitely be a different shape to all of your friends, but if you still worry about your weight then it is best to tell an adult or someone you can trust as they can be honest with you about it.

Dear Bideford Buzz,

My best friend and I have been close since nursery, but since she's been seeing my brother she's been completely ignoring me, what can I do? Anonymous

Try talking to your best friend about it, and if it doesn't improve then try organising activities outside of school like going shopping or going to the movies. Make sure your brother doesn't come – say it's just for you and your best friend. I hope you work it out ☺

From Across the Manche

Bonjour, I'm Tom, from near Bideford, currently on the year abroad of my undergraduate degree in English and French. I'm living in a town on the outskirts of Nantes, working as an English language teaching assistant.

It really gets me Angers. A group of assistants and one of our new French friends went to Angers at the end of January, home of many fun puns for irritating English speakers like me. Aside from the internal misery caused by the suppression of these annoying and unfunny jokes, it was a nice day – in a city which is smaller and not quite as nice as Rennes, but which does have a very nice castle. We went on the TGV- which takes about forty minutes from Nantes - arriving mid morning where we went almost straight to the Musée de Beaux Arts. We did stop first, however, to have photos taken with the English red telephone box in the centre ville – generously donated by the twin town of Wigan.

The Musée was pretty good, with an interesting permanent collection of things dug up from excavations in the area, and a temporary exhibition of the work of Jacques Villon, a French cubist painter, which I found more interesting and provocative than I thought I would. We didn't get to see the rest of the permanent collection because it was closing for lunch (quelle surprise) and as it turned out, the castle takes ages to go around. First though, it was time to manger en Angers, and we finally found a creperie with enough seats – only after a fifteen minute wait during which some old people behind us in the queue were complaining that 'the foreigners' were getting a table before them. It turns out that things easily Angers the people of Angers as later the woman at reception in the castle got very impatient with us as we tried to understand the myriad of rules about who can and can't get in for free; you have to be under 26 and a 'legal resident' in France or the EU, or a student in art history or tourism and hospitality (something she clearly wasn't) - we eventually worked out after a lot of faffing with identity cards and passports. I wouldn't say attitudes like that Angers me, but it's not very nice (sorry). We walked around the grounds to begin with, before heading to the main attraction, the Apocalypse Tapestry. First, though, was the gift shop, where I was almost tempted to buy a CD called 'Music for a Medieval Banquet' – 'Not to be missed' according to some obscure reviews magazine quoted on the sleeve. The tapestry itself is quite something; made in the 1300s it's over a hundred metres long and hangs loosely on the walls of a dimly lit room – making the whole experience quite otherworldly. In some parts it's so faded and worn that the pictures of multi-headed beasts and drowning people are hardly visible, and you wonder how long it will be until it just vanishes into thin air.

Back in Nantes in the evening, we went to Delirium, a branch of a Belgian bar of the same name which won a Guinness World Record for stocking the widest range of beers ever. I bought the cheapest possible option before seeing the large menu and realising quite how many different beers there are, and felt a bit of a philistine for going for the least expensive. Sometimes, I really Angers myself. Tom Collins (This piece was adapted from a post on my blog – Read the full story on <http://ayearinnantes.wordpress.com> )

Breaking the Taboo

On TV, most evenings, there are adverts for products to help cope with bladder weakness. Not long ago, no-one ever talked about these problems. Nowadays things are more open, but the main message is what to wear to prevent embarrassment, rather than how to deal with it, or even prevent it happening.

Jeannie Smith is a physiotherapist with over ten years of experience in bladder, bowel and womens' health. Her main role is running clinics for the NHS in North Devon Community Hospitals. She explains,

'For many years, bladder and bowel problems have not been talked about, and it's not long since women might be told 'You've had children and you're getting older- these things are to be expected'

Luckily, times are changing, and doctors, nurses and physiotherapists are keen to help women improve their situation.

Women's magazines and health sections in newspapers sometimes mention bladder problems, but just say 'do pelvic floor exercises' with little advice as to how to do them, how often, and for how long.

Patients with more severe symptoms are referred to my NHS clinics, and I am often surprised by the lack of knowledge many women have of how their bodies work. I feel that if women were better informed before they had problems, many might be avoided altogether'

Jeannie has therefore teamed up with a gym in Bideford to offer a weekly exercise and education class. This includes warm up stretches, posture work, pelvic floor and core exercises, to tone up the tummy.

The classes suit all ages, and are particularly good for anyone who feels they need to exercise, but are worried that traditional classes may be too much for them. The exercises work the pelvic floor and tummy muscles intensively, but without any worry about putting strain on other areas. This makes the class ideal for new mums, and anyone with mild prolapse or bladder weakness, or any woman who wants to learn how to prevent these problems. As the class is run by a specialist in this field, women can have complete confidence.

The Well Woman Workout is at the Michele White Fitness Centre, off Clovelly Road, at 12 midday, every Friday, and cost £5 per session.

Please ring Jeannie on 01237 479230 for more details.

News from the Burton art gallery & museum

Drawing takes precedence throughout March, especially with work by the late Wilhelmina Barns-Graham, who died in 2004. This artist contributed greatly within the St. Ives School, and is considered to be one of the most important British artists. Wilhelmina was a printer as well as a painter, but drawing was her main interest, and the 40 works on display this month and next, show her talent for depicting the sea, rocks, trees, ice and landscapes. One can feel the power of the sea, the flow of the current in her drawings; the strata of rocks, the layout of field systems, their rhythms and patterns intrigued her, and are described energetically in her work.

The exhibition is entitled, 'The Discipline of the Mind', and begins on 3rd March, ends on 16th April.

The Craft Gallery features paintings, hand-printed scarves and jewellery, and home wares by Lee May Foster-Wilson. Her quirky art is very unconventional, and her use of colour unexpected and exciting. Her work is on show until the end of April.

Try Kathy Badcock's 'Contemporary Mosaics' on the 24th March. A day course from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. costs £30. And Miriam McCurdy takes you 'In Response – Landscapes' on 30th March, 10a.m. to 4 p.m. £30 for the day course, when you will be taken around the Barns-Graham exhibition, spend the morning sketching in the local environment, and develop them into paintings later. For more details of both courses, phone 01237 471455.

The Friends will entertain you with Charmian Harris, jewellery maker exceptional, of Torrington. Her talk title, 'An Unplanned Career in Jewellery Making', gives a clue to her fascinating journey into becoming a nationally well-known craftswoman in precious metals and gemstones.

Wednesday, 21st March, 7.30 p.m. Admission £5. All welcome.

The Cafe du Parc presents Sunday Lunch with Jazz by The Quartet Zeitgeist on 4th March. Booking essential. Phone: 01237 429317. Time: 12.30 to 2.30. Diana Warmington

Love And Summer – by William Trevor (as read and discussed by Bideford Library Readers' Group)

The title suggests an idyll. Indeed it is summer - the novel covers the months from June to September and is set in the 1950s in an out-of-the-way Irish town where nothing much happens. Into this town comes a young man, Florian Kilderry, riding a Bicycle and wearing a 'jaunty green and blue striped tie'. He is noticed by Ellie who has been delivering eggs and is on her way home. Thinking about him later, she remembers his 'slender fragile seeming hands. The Stage is set. It emerges that Ellie, an ex convent girl, is married to a farmer several years her senior. Dillahan is kind to her but he is haunted by the death of his first wife. Florian, an only child, lives in a dilapidated mansion left to him on the death of his bohemian parents. He is submerged by debts, the crumbling house and a sense of failure. How the relationship develops between Florian and Ellie is told with a delicate touch and is interwoven with the stories of Orpen Wren an elderly man living in the past, and the two children of Mrs Connulty - whose funeral opens the novel - now middle aged, lives blighted. This is no idyll but portrayal of people who have no voice and how they deal with what life throws at them.

Peter Evans shares some of his readings from last year

- Once by Morris Gleitzman (about a boy – 8/9 years old - searching for parents during the Holocaust. Heartbreaking. He was so full of hope when you knew there wasn't any)
- Into the Wild by Jon Krakauer. Even better than the film – and there was a bridge a kilometre upstream if only he'd known.
- 'Everything' by Simon Price – history of the Manic Street Preachers (I was surprised how little it told me that I didn't already know) but by the end thought it was the best book about a rock band I'd ever read
- No Way Down – Graham Bowley – tragedy on K2.
- Fugitive Pieces – Anne Michaels (reread as a 'favourite book' to report on at Library group)
- The Lacuna – Barbara Kingsolver – struggled to get into it, glad I persevered.
- Winter Ghosts Kate Mosse:– set in Pyrennees in late 1920s. Quite atmospheric. Didn't grab me at the time but at the end I felt it was quite uplifting.

Report on a recent meeting of Bideford branch of the Devonshire association

A recent well-attended meeting of the Bideford branch of the Devonshire Association was addressed by Dr Tony Cornford on the subject of 'Computers in Healthcare – A Prescription for Recovery?'. Dr Cornford is a Senior Lecturer at the London School of Economics and has undertaken extensive research into computers in healthcare and the NHS.

In his informative, thought provoking and entertaining talk he pointed out the very many undoubted benefits of computers in the management of patient care and record keeping but acknowledged that they were unable to undertake all functions normally carried out by medical staff. He cited hour-by-hour operating theatre management as an example of where 'whiteboard and chalk' could not be replaced. On the other hand electronic prescribing in hospitals was now a vital part of healthcare providing additional safeguards, avoidance of drug incompatibilities, allergies and contra-indications whilst at the same time enhancing co-operation between professional personnel and departments. It was also a source of guidance for the less experienced and enabled stricter stock control. New avenues for research were opened up.

In a humorous aside we learned not to be offended if staff were heard to say 'bring in the COW' as this is merely an acronym for 'computer on wheels' so much in evidence on hospital wards these days especially in Intensive Care where such equipment is vital.

The talk provoked a lively debate which highlighted the audience's concern for the enormous cost of some schemes, confidentiality, security and the intrusion of the computer into the one-to-one consulting situation in general practice. H.E.C.

Weather condition lately have been dreadful and the opportunities to see any vessel passing Lundy have been few and far between

In the February edition I mentioned I was awaiting confirmation from Torridge District Council for the vacant position on the Harbour board working group; this was duly confirmed and I attended my first meeting on the 26th January. A great deal had been mentioned in the local press about mooring fees, but the Chairman Councillor Barry Parsons read out a statement confirming they would not be imposed on yacht and small craft.

The Harbour Master advised that shipping movements had increased mainly due to the timber shipments.

The old wrecks lying on the ground next to the shipyard should be going shortly, hopefully to the Old Richmond Drydock at Appledore for breaking up or, in the modern terminology recycling.

Regards Norman
